In Memorium

Greatness is not always forward, aggressive, or obvious. Greatness can be quiet, patient, and unrecognized. We of the 1968 Pathfinder staff would like to represent the feelings of the entire student body by dedicating the aggressive spirit of this school and book to Mr. William Boyer. Mr. Boyer's long service to this school district provided many quiet victories which can be seen in the results of his teaching. Many students have taken their active role in the Riverside community through his guidance. The intensity of the Riverside spirit has dimmed at his passing. The absence of his quiet strength and determination has left a void in the dignity and character of our school.

Administration guides

Riverside student community.

Capable leadership was one of the many qualities possessed by the administrators. Under the experienced guidance of Mr. Edward C. Schaffer, the school district continued at its successful pace. Mr. C. John Brannon, being thoroughly acquainted with the area and students, maintained the standards of Riverside High School. With the addition of Mr. Edward Phillips, new assistant principal, many new ideas and innovations were made possible. Throughout the year, this competent team directed the path of Riverside to prosperity.

One of the more important aspects of our curriculum was the Guidance Department. Mr. Cornell and Mr. Meehan devoted much of their time to each student individually, helping them in any way possible to make the right decisions. Through informal discussions, seniors especially were able to make numerous decisions affecting their future. With this instruction and guidance, the students were better equipped to face the outside world and take their place in society as better citizens.

"Once more with feeling," seems to be Mr. Poff's encouraging remark as he directs the Jr. High Band.

In an effort to recognize the interests of all students, choral, instrumental, and music appreciation courses were offered in the curricula of the Music Department this year. Students with a cultured voice explored the world of vocal music, expressing the creations of well-known composers. Exhibitions of choral talents in the annual Christmas and Spring concerts inspired students with the moving spirit of vocal music. Instrumental music cultivated the talent of students wishing to express emotions through an instrument. Special importance was placed on the study of the moods of instrumental classics and on the instrumental conveyance of these moods. Tying the courses together were the Music Appreciation classes which studied the intricate symbolism of music and its impact on the world of today.

Mathematics often intrigued and baffled its followers

The Riverside Math Department again lived up to its usual standing by providing a math program to suit every students' needs. These programs ranged from an accelerated course for academic students to a practical course that would be helpful in future vocational work. With the help of an outstanding teaching staff these complex programs instilled in each student the ability to perform basic and complex operations and gave each student a sound mathematical background.

Basic fundamentals were furthered through driving experience

Under the fine supervision of Mr. Ellenich, the juniors learned the proper operation of a vehicle by the actual behind the wheel driving and thirty hours of classroom study. For the first time this year sophomores were enrolled in the classes to acquaint them with the responsibilities of driving which will be useful in the near future when they undertake driving an automobile.

The English Department headed by Mrs. LaRose gets stronger every year. To promote better understanding in literature and grammar was one of its main purposes. Learning to express one's thoughts on paper was another of the department's main objectives. In the college preparatory classes, students were prepared for college. The general English classes give students an all around look at grammar and literature. The business English classes prepared students for the rigorous world of business. The English Department was in the process of revising the curriculum for the oncoming year. It was a very progressing year for the English Department.

The annual Art Exhibit also expressed the accomplishments of the students in various media of the art world. The distinction of being "Artist of the Week" was a special recognition given to individuals who displayed outstanding talent.

One of the most important subjects that students are required to take is History. By studying the past failures and successes of society, students learned to understand and apply historical principles to modern world problems. These various classes; Vital Issues, American History, World Cultures, Economics, and problems of Democracy; prepared students for life outside school. Other forms of government, cultures, and customs became familiar topics of discussion and interest.

Mrs. McElwain explains an unusual artifact from another society to her World Cultures class.

Sports and health were stressed for scholars and athletes

During the year, many phases of physical education were stressed in the gym classes. Physical exercise was combined with games and relay races to add a little spice to the physical aspect of our schooling. Square dancing and swimming also livened up the class that helped build sound bodies, sportsmanship, and good character. In addition to gym classes, the teachers also taught health, first aid, and human anatomy, which helped the students to understand the importance of physical fitness.

The Basics of gymnastics are practiced by the girls' physical education class under the watchful eye of Miss Karen King.

New crafts were demonstrated for shop students

Under the skilled supervision of Mr. Brown and Mr. Barbish, students gained valuable experience in industrial arts through projects in wood and metal shop classes. Time, effort, and leadership enabled the boys to turn out well-made and useful objects. The projects ranged from easy, simple-to-make articles in seventh grade to harder, more technical jobs in advanced classes. The boys themselves decided what they wanted to make and were permitted to work on this item providing it was not beyond their capabilities.

Typing was one of the many practical skills gained by the students through courses offered by the business department.

The Commercial Department of Riverside provided not only secretarial experience for the business students, but many teachers were aided in their work. Throughout the past years, the district has purchased many electric typewriters and modern business machines, making the department one of the most progressive in the area. Mrs. Bilkey, head of the department, worked proficiently as she obtained jobs for many commercial students in the first year of Riverside's "On-the-Job" Training. Though paid a small fee for their services, the girls received great payment through experience and satisfaction from their individual jobs.

Potential scientists became kinetic students

The expanding world of competitive science necessitated an excellent program of scientific skills in high school. Riverside's Science Department succeeded in offering a balanced, well-rounded curriculum interesting every student. The Junior High General Science courses prepared students to enter specialized studies of Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Earth and Space Science. Students learned the value of thought and logic by studying everyday scientific occurrences in these courses.

Riverside makes television first

Riverside expanded its dimensions to present three outstanding students on the television program, "Battle of Wits." Cheryl Boots, Lorraine Sockaci, and Walter Householder ably competed against Braddock High School to project the "great" scholastic character of our school.

Bookstore provided "stationery" service

Mr. Cornell, sponsor, Vince Frank, Barbara Gillespie, Dan Demeter, Patty Kroll, Cheryl Black, Rich Young.

Under the direction of Mr. Cornell, the Bookstore served a two-fold purpose. Not only were funds raised for the Student Council, but the Bookstore also provided a first-aid station for the student who had lost a pen or a pencil or had just given his last sheet of paper to a fellow classmate. Cheryl Black and Patty Kroll co-chairmen of the Bookstore Committee, headed a staff of eight workers who could be found each morning from 8:00-8:25 in the main hall selling articles of necessity to students. The cheery atmosphere of the Bookstore members helped start the day out for many Riverside students.

Late student shoppers miss Bookstore bargains.

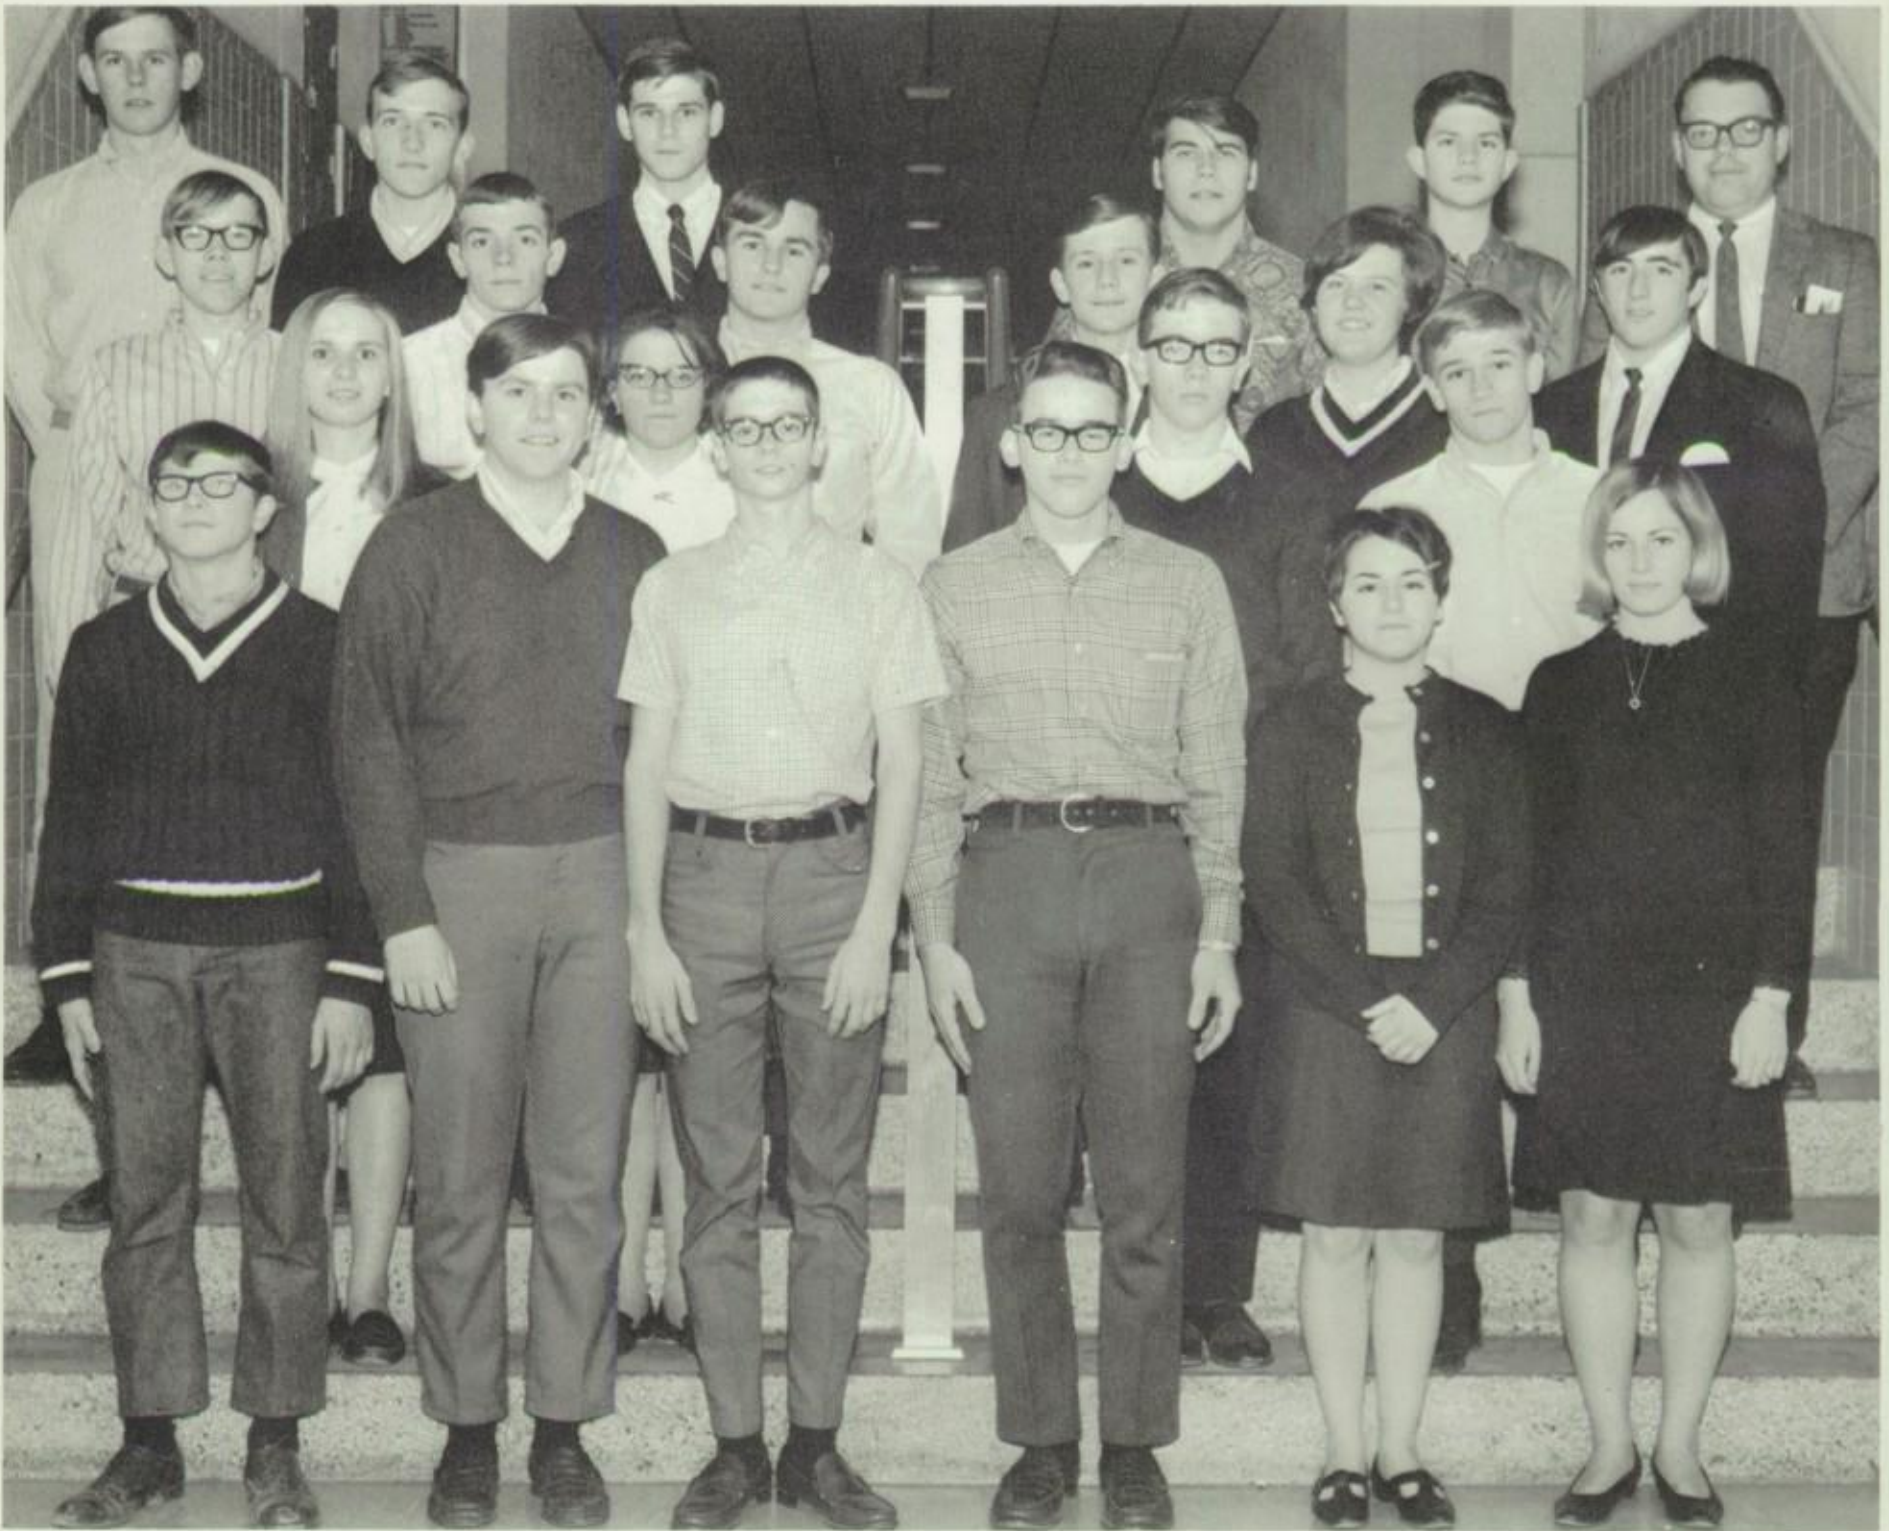

Senior High Student Council

The Senior High School Student Council of Riverside High School played an important part in school organizations throughout the year. The Student Council sponsored such projects as a food and clothing drive.

This year, The Association of the Student Body replaced the name, Student Council. A major accomplishment of the Council this year was the attainment of Senior Privilege Cards.

Each year the Council provides a bridge so administration and students can meet to discuss various problems and to work together to make Riverside as "great" as possible.

Senior Hi-Y

Under the new guidance of Mr. Marr, Riverside's Senior Hi-Y strived to attain a code of clean speech, good sportsmanship, scholarship, and honesty throughout their regular monthly meetings. The objective of the organization was to create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character. One of the highlights of the year was the annual spring Spectacular held at Butler. Any boy in the Hi-Y was eligible to attend the event which had competition in all kinds of sports. The school with the most points receives a trophy which is taken home by the winning school. The event that rounds out the year is the Model Legislative Convention held at Harrisburg. The club sends two representatives to take part in the assembly of all Hi-Y chapters of Pennsylvania.

National Honor Society has been growing every year. Juniors and Seniors are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service, dependability and character. Induction ceremonies for new members are conducted in the spring. A movie-dance is held each year as a fund-raising project. "Guns of Navarone" proved to be a success this past year. Several field trips, including a well-known movie, are held each year. National Honor Society adds greatly to the pride of Riverside.

Future Nurses of America

Service to the community and assistance to the students are the two main purposes of the Future Nurses Club. The first function is carried out through various service projects during the year. These services help make our school "great". The club helps the students choose their future careers by sponsoring field trips and presenting monthly programs. These trips enable members to tour local hospitals and study the facilities and working conditions. The monthly program, a speaker or movie, present a better picture of nursing as a career.

Science Society

The purpose of the Science Society was to cultivate an interest in science already instilled in its members. This aim was reached through the interesting activities planned throughout the year. Regular monthly meetings became stimulating scientific discussions. In addition to the regular activities, Mr. Whetsel, and the club's fifty members embarked on several field trips. The climax of the year for the Science Society members was the annual banquet. In retrospect, the Science Society proved itself a "great" asset to Riverside.

Science students listen intently as Mr. Whetsel plans a stimulating fieldtrip.

Future Homemakers of America

Helping girls prepare for a future in the home was the main purpose of the Future Homemakers Club. This organization pointed out responsibilities of home care; which included child care, cooking and sewing. At the end of their senior year, seniors who have earned one hundred points received a charm. These points were earned through participation in various club projects and activities. As a service to the community, a clothing drive for the children of the McGuire Home was sponsored by the club. The girls also held a coffee klatch for the members of the faculty at Christmas.

The ability to concentrate deeply was an important asset to the members of the chess club, better known as the Knights of Riverside. The main project of the club was the annual chess tournament in the spring; the tournament was exciting and suspenseful. Aside from regular meetings and sponsoring a school dance, many members of the club also took part in playing chess by mail and holding their own tournaments. The players found that through these tournaments their ability to concentrate was greatly strengthened and a sense of sportsmanship was attained. This was the third year of the chess club, but already it has done much to further the cultural aspect of Riverside High School.

The teachers were relieved of much work by their student-aids. These student-aids did everything from teaching classes during their study halls, to filling out report cards during their crowded free time. In this way the students, planning to be teachers after graduation, have had some experience; and they can better decide what they want to teach. Often at the end of the year, there is a misty-eyed senior girl walking slowly out of the elementary classroom in which she student-taught. Each year, the senior members sponsor an after-school tea for the former members who have gone on to college. At the tea, the senior members obtain information from the college freshmen on the best way to make the grade while still having fun.

At some time during the year, all teachers and students have realized the value of the varied workings of the Library Club. Without this organization, the school library could not have possibly operated. Every member was assigned certain duties: maintenance of the magazine room, designing new and creative bulletin board displays, and returning books to the shelves. Clerical and management duties were required of all club members. Members demonstrated various visual aids, which were available for both faculty and student use. As a service to the school, the Library Club sponsored the Book Fair. This annual event made classical and recreational books available for purchase by teachers and students.

Electric Club

Behind the click and whirr of projectors throughout the school was an Electric Club member. It was common knowledge to the students of Riverside that without the efficient Electric Club the school would have been in a sorry state. The main purpose of the Electric Club was to handle the scheduling, distribution and operation of school audio-visual equipment. Under the club's jurisdiction were movie projectors, opaque and overhead projectors, taperecorders, and record players. Each period, certain students were selected to work in the audio-visual room and helped individual teachers with the varied machines available for classroom use. In order to raise money for club activities, the Electric Club held a dance in November. Continuing in school tradition, the Electric Club provided the annual public Christmas display on the school lawn.

National Thespians

National Thespians desire to promote an understanding and an education of dramatics. Through exposure of these mediums, emotions of a few were transmitted to many. Each year there are two class plays, one being a senior class play and the other an all-school play. The induction ceremonies are open to the public, and a banquet is held at the end of the school year. The main feature of this banquet is the announcement of the best actor and the best actress. In order to become a member of the National Thespians, a student must earn a hundred points. This is accomplished by working on various committees for the plays, by being on the play cast, or by providing entertainment — such as singing, dancing, or a monologue — for each meeting. Through this stage experience, individuals develop their personality by gaining self-confidence and creative expression. As their community projects, the club produces many varied skits for churches, civic organizations, and school assemblies.

From individual projects to group participation in many displays, the Senior High Art Club remained an active organization at Riverside High School. This club gives any artistically-inclined student a chance to use his creative talents to the best of his ability. Every member has an individual project for each semester that he can work on after school. This project is of the artist's choice. During activity periods, the club invites different professional artists to speak on or demonstrate their various techniques. In this way, the members obtain a wider knowledge of the art world. The Art Club this year has done much to further the interests and talents of all its members.

The purpose of the Riverside Chapter of the National Forensic League is to study the skills of formal debate and instill in its members the poise, thought, and sportsmanship necessary for competition debate. Speaking on the topic "Resolved: That the United States Government establish Uniform Criminal Investigation Procedures" the members practiced diligently every Thursday after school, traveling to Forensic League competition on weekends. Tryouts for the organization were held twice this year. Requirements for a competent debator are stringent. A good, clear speaking voice, attractive appearance and poise, and a quick, witted mind are prerequisites of the club. Most important trait of the National Forensic League debator is dedication—the dedication that places the name of Riverside in victory.

Business Club

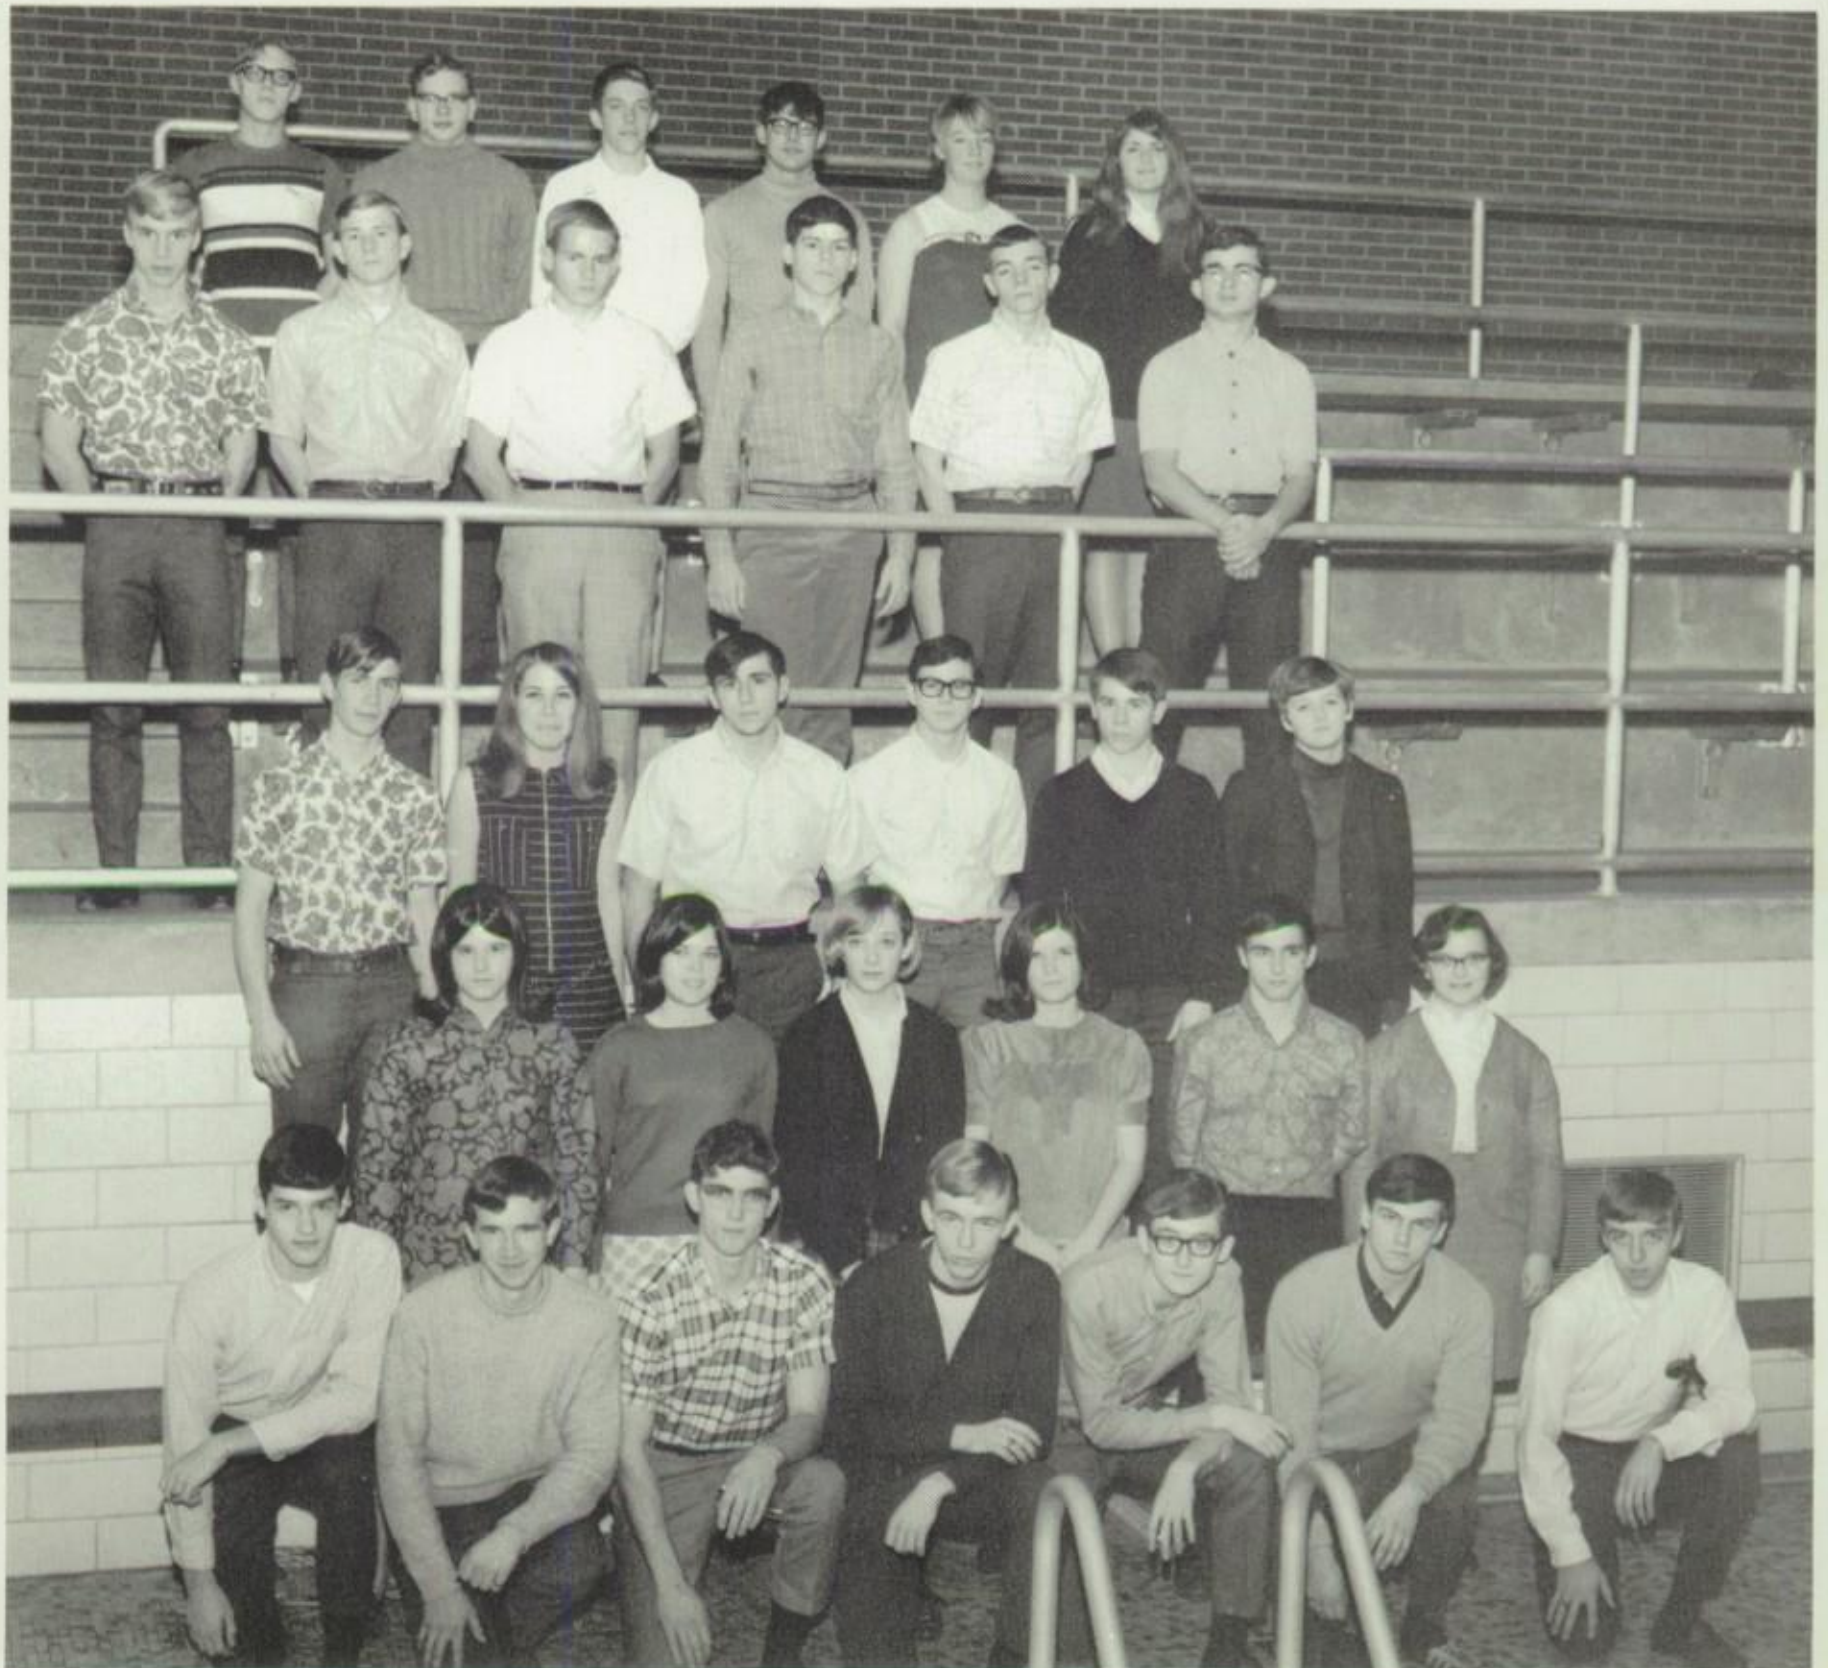

The Business Club of Riverside High School has provided many typing and production services this past year. These include tests and study guides for the faculty and term papers for students. Outside organizations also employ the services of the Club.

The members of the Business Club held a party and dinner banquet at an out-of-town restaurant. At this time the award was presented to the Outstanding Commercial student at Riverside. The club also took a field trip in the spring of the year.

Varsity "R" Club

The Varsity R. Club was one of the most active clubs at the school. It was composed of students who got a letter in a sport. This year for the first time girls on the swimteam were also permitted in the club. One of the many projects of this organization was selling refreshments during basketball games. The club sponsored the Hoe Down at Halloween time which required quite a bit of planning and preparation. The boys picked apples and made cidar to sell. The Christmas dance, "Happiness is Christmas," highlighted the year's activities of the club.

"Happiness is Christmas" was the title of the Varsity "R" Christmas dance. For the senior high couples who attended, the Christmas season became happier as they enjoyed the provided refreshments and danced in the seasonally decorated gymnasium. Red and green streamers were draped from the center of the ceiling while brightly decorated pine trees surrounded the throne for the Varsity "R" Princess. During intermission, the members of the court were introduced with their escorts. Bronya Bisceglia was escorted by Neil Strosnider, Cindy Brown by Gary Ripper, Janet Johnson by George Ferrante, Patsy Veder by Michael McCullough, and Susan Welsh by Patrick Shingleton. Susan Welsh was crowned as Princess by Bonnie Marr, Princess of the 1966 Christmas Dance. Then, the new Princess was presented to her public in the exclusive dance for the court.

Junior High Student Council

Citizenship, leadership, good sportsmanship, and scholarship were ideals which the members of the Junior High Student Council tried to achieve. The Council promoted a better relationship between faculty, students, and administration. A representative and an alternate were elected from each homeroom and acted as the governing voice for their fellow students in the affairs of the student body. The Junior High Student Council, along with the Senior High Student Council, sponsored the operation of the popcorn machine at school functions, and activities such as dances, dress-up days, and food and clothing drives. In addition to these, the Council arranged special assemblies which present interesting people and ideas to the Junior High student body. Other projects successfully undertaken by the Junior High Student Council were the bookstore and the United Fund Drive. In order that the members of the Junior High Student Council could better equip themselves to serve their fellow students, they attended various conferences throughout the year. Their service to the school and training within the Council has provided them with valuable experience for taking their place in the adult world.

Junior Tri-Hi-Y

Although their aims and ideals are high, the girls of the junior Tri-Hi-Y Club has carried them out to the fullest extent. The theme of this organization is to serve others and develop strong Christian characters. The service project completes the initial part of their purpose. This was making bibs for the children at the McGuire Home. They also provided an excellent Thanksgiving assembly, "The Joy of Living," relating nature and humanity to God. However, Tri-Hi-Y was not all work. A number of activities were planned for the girls' enjoyment. This year indeed, was a busy one for the girls of Junior Tri-Hi-Y.

Junior Hi-Y

Under the direction of Mr. Scott, Junior Hi-Y tried to impress the same ideals of clean speech, scholarship and sportsmanship must like their brother, the Senior Hi-Y. Junior Hi-Y, a Young Men's Christian Association service club, provided junior high boys with a means of Christian fellowship, fun, good sportsmanship, leadership, high moral standards, and a clean way of living. The forty-three members enjoyed many activities which helped them develop physically as well as mentally. The regular monthly meetings consisted of plans for club projects and activities. Teen talk discussions were held on current and worthwhile problems. Several times in the past year, the Junior-Hi-Y joined hands with the Tri-Hi-Y in projects to accomplish their combined standards of Christian character. A swimming party in the fall and two swinging dances turned out very successfully. The highlight of the year was the Sports Spectacular which took place at Butler. Athletic competition with other Hi-Y clubs in the district gave them an opportunity to prove their athletic abilities.

Junior "R" Thespions

The purpose of the Junior Thespians Society was to promote a better understanding of the dramatic arts. Students were trained to speak and to act in front of an audience, and were taught poise, diction, enunciation, and responsibility. Those who wished to join Junior Thespians were required to present a short monologue for their tryouts, and had to show an avid interest in the performing arts. Members of the organization were students from the seventh, eighth, and ninth grade classes who turned in a creditable job in their tryouts. Throughout the year, the Junior Thespians endeavored to entertain the student body and community organizations by enacting plays and educational programs.

Junior Art Club

Throughout the year the Junior High Art Club helped to beautify Riverside with various displays and projects. Lectures and field trips provided the members with a deeper appreciation and wider knowledge of the art world. Sponsoring a dance was one of the fund-raising projects of the Junior High Art Club. Above all, the club prepared its participants for future membership in the Senior High Art Club.

Junior Girls' Athletic Association

Under the careful direction of the Physical Education Department, an active schedule of basketball, volleyball, swimming, and other numerous sports were set up for the Junior Girls Athletic Association. Besides participating in several tournaments held, the girls developed sportsmanship and a sense of responsibility toward their teammates. One hundred and seventy members of the club met once a month with their sponsor, Mrs. Mathews and also held a party in March. During the track and field events held in the spring, Junior G.A.A. worked with the senior high girls in learning new skills and teamwork.

Junior Historians

One of the purposes of Junior Historians is to encourage good citizenship. At Christmas many soldiers in Vietnam received packages and a huge Christmas Card signed by most of Riverside's students. During the early spring, members were busy redoing old toys so that boys and girls in children's homes could also enjoy them. In April, a History Fair was sponsored by the club to encourage research into the past. Besides all these time consuming service projects, they also found time to plan some very interesting field trips to Titusville and Pittsburgh.

High Tide

Many innovations were started by the High Tide this year. One of the most important additions was the purchase of a new off-set printer. This printer enabled the staff to print its own paper every month. Starting second semester, the High Tide was published every other week. Thus, students received a bonus of extra papers that were not included in the beginning of the year. The High Tide has kept the students and faculty excellently informed of all the various activities and happenings occurring throughout the year.

Tensions . . . conflicting personalities . . . too many hours with too little sleep. Eyes burning in red sockets . . . refuse of a dozen paper-bag suppers cluttering the somber room . . . a forgotten radio howling in a corner . . .

Their hours were long and difficult for the 1968 Pathfinder staff found that true greatness was not an easy commodity to define or completely reveal. The basics of general greatness were large and easy to explain. But, the intricate complexities that made Riverside unique were evasive and difficult to describe.

The combination of photography and copy proved the basis of the technical operations. Typists organized material and typed the final copy for the publisher. Thus, in a combination of determination, and purpose, the 1968 Pathfinder staff strove to be a creditable off spring of something great.

English Club

The English Club, publisher of the literary magazine The Troubadour, stimulated the interest of culture outside the classroom. "Good Grammar Week," one of the organization's first projects, was a major endeavor this year. Recognition of errors in grammar was stressed each day. The week was concluded with an assembly sponsored by the club. During the year the club sponsored several other assemblies, which consisted of films about literature in other lands.

Representatives were selected for this club on the basis of an election that was held at the beginning of the school year. Two delegates are elected from each grade level. Along with the officers, and sponsors, the representatives promoted culture throughout the entire school.

"Polynesian Paradise"

The highlight of every year is the junior-senior prom. This year's was no exception. As one walked in, the atmosphere of Polynesian islands surrounded the couples. Polynesian Paradise, the theme of the prom, was conveyed throughout the lobby and gymnasium. A new attraction was added to the prom this year, instead of using crepe paper for the ceiling, cheesecloth was used. This added a special touch to the prom. A thatched hut made from bamboo with palm leaves for the roof was used as a bandstand. The walls were covered with jungle paintings and an ocean scene. The throne was a wicker chair surrounded by palm trees. Behind this large wicker chair was an immense painting of a volcano. The Marcells, a very popular recording group, were the highlight of the evening. Sophomores dressed as natives served the couples. The night was spent eating, dancing, and having an enjoyable time which made it an evening to remember. Through the competent guidance of Debby Giancola and Dan Demeter, co-chairman of the prom, Polynesian Paradise was a huge success.

Riverside Senior High Band

Helping students to understand and appreciate music was the main concern of the band. It furthered the members emotional and physical development through leadership training, and physical exercise and helped them gain coordination from marching and playing. Members gained knowledge about citizenship through their participation in civic functions. The band participated in many parades during the summer and early fall. Their stirring music and precision marching won for them recognition and awards. Among the recognition they received was being selected to march in the Cherry Blossom Parade in Washington, D. C. An auction, the Band Boosters money making project, was held in the fall to make enough money to buy senior band members jackets and/or letters. Band members gathered odds and ends from the neighborhood, fixed them up, and auctioned them off. Junior and senior members of the band were recipients of awards at the annual band banquet held in the late fall. They received jackets and/or letters for their earnest support of the band. Although the band won its greatest recognition by participating in parades, it was not always marching. The annual band concert was the best yet and thoroughly enjoyed by everyone who attended. A new program was initiated at the start of this school year and turned out to be a huge success. Instead of the band meeting only three times a week, it met five times giving the musicians more valuable practice time.

Recognizing this goal, the members of the Senior Band competed with each of their fellow members to be chosen for the Wind Ensemble on the basis of musical achievement. "Left, right, left, right . . ." could be heard by the students in their sixth period class as the Junior High Band practiced diligently. Although they attended few parades the Junior High Band exhibited their excellent talents by displaying outstanding performances. By participating in the Junior High Band, one prepares himself for future years in the Senior High Band.

Under the supervision of Mr. David Brooks and Assistant Director Michael Poff, the students were separated into groups which provided individual attention for improving musical techniques.

After many months of hard work, the Junior High Band presented a fine concert.

The band's main purposes are to produce enthusiastic and experienced instrumentalists for future years in the Senior High Band.

Concert Choir

Under new direction, the Riverside Concert Choir was completely revamped and reorganized. After the audition and selection of members, the choir was faced with the task of learning music for their yearly debut, the Christmas Vesper Service. This program consisted of various sacred Christmas selections and readings. The community hailed it as a successful and unique Riverside presentation.

Mixed Chorus

For members of the Mixed Chorus, the highlight of the year was the presentation of the annual Spring Choral Concert. After preparing several musical arrangements, the group performed in another credible concert presented by the entire choral department. Now composed of sophomores and juniors, the prospective members auditioned in the fall. Immediately after notification of their acceptance, they began studying the basic fundamentals of choral work. Practicing sight reading and increased familiarity with rhythm and time signatures proved beneficial to the quality of the chorus. Experience was the key word since Mixed Chorus members would comprise a substantial portion of the Concert Choir in future years.

Freshmen trained as future vocalists

The Ninth Grade Chorus gave the freshman students the opportunity to participate in musical activities.

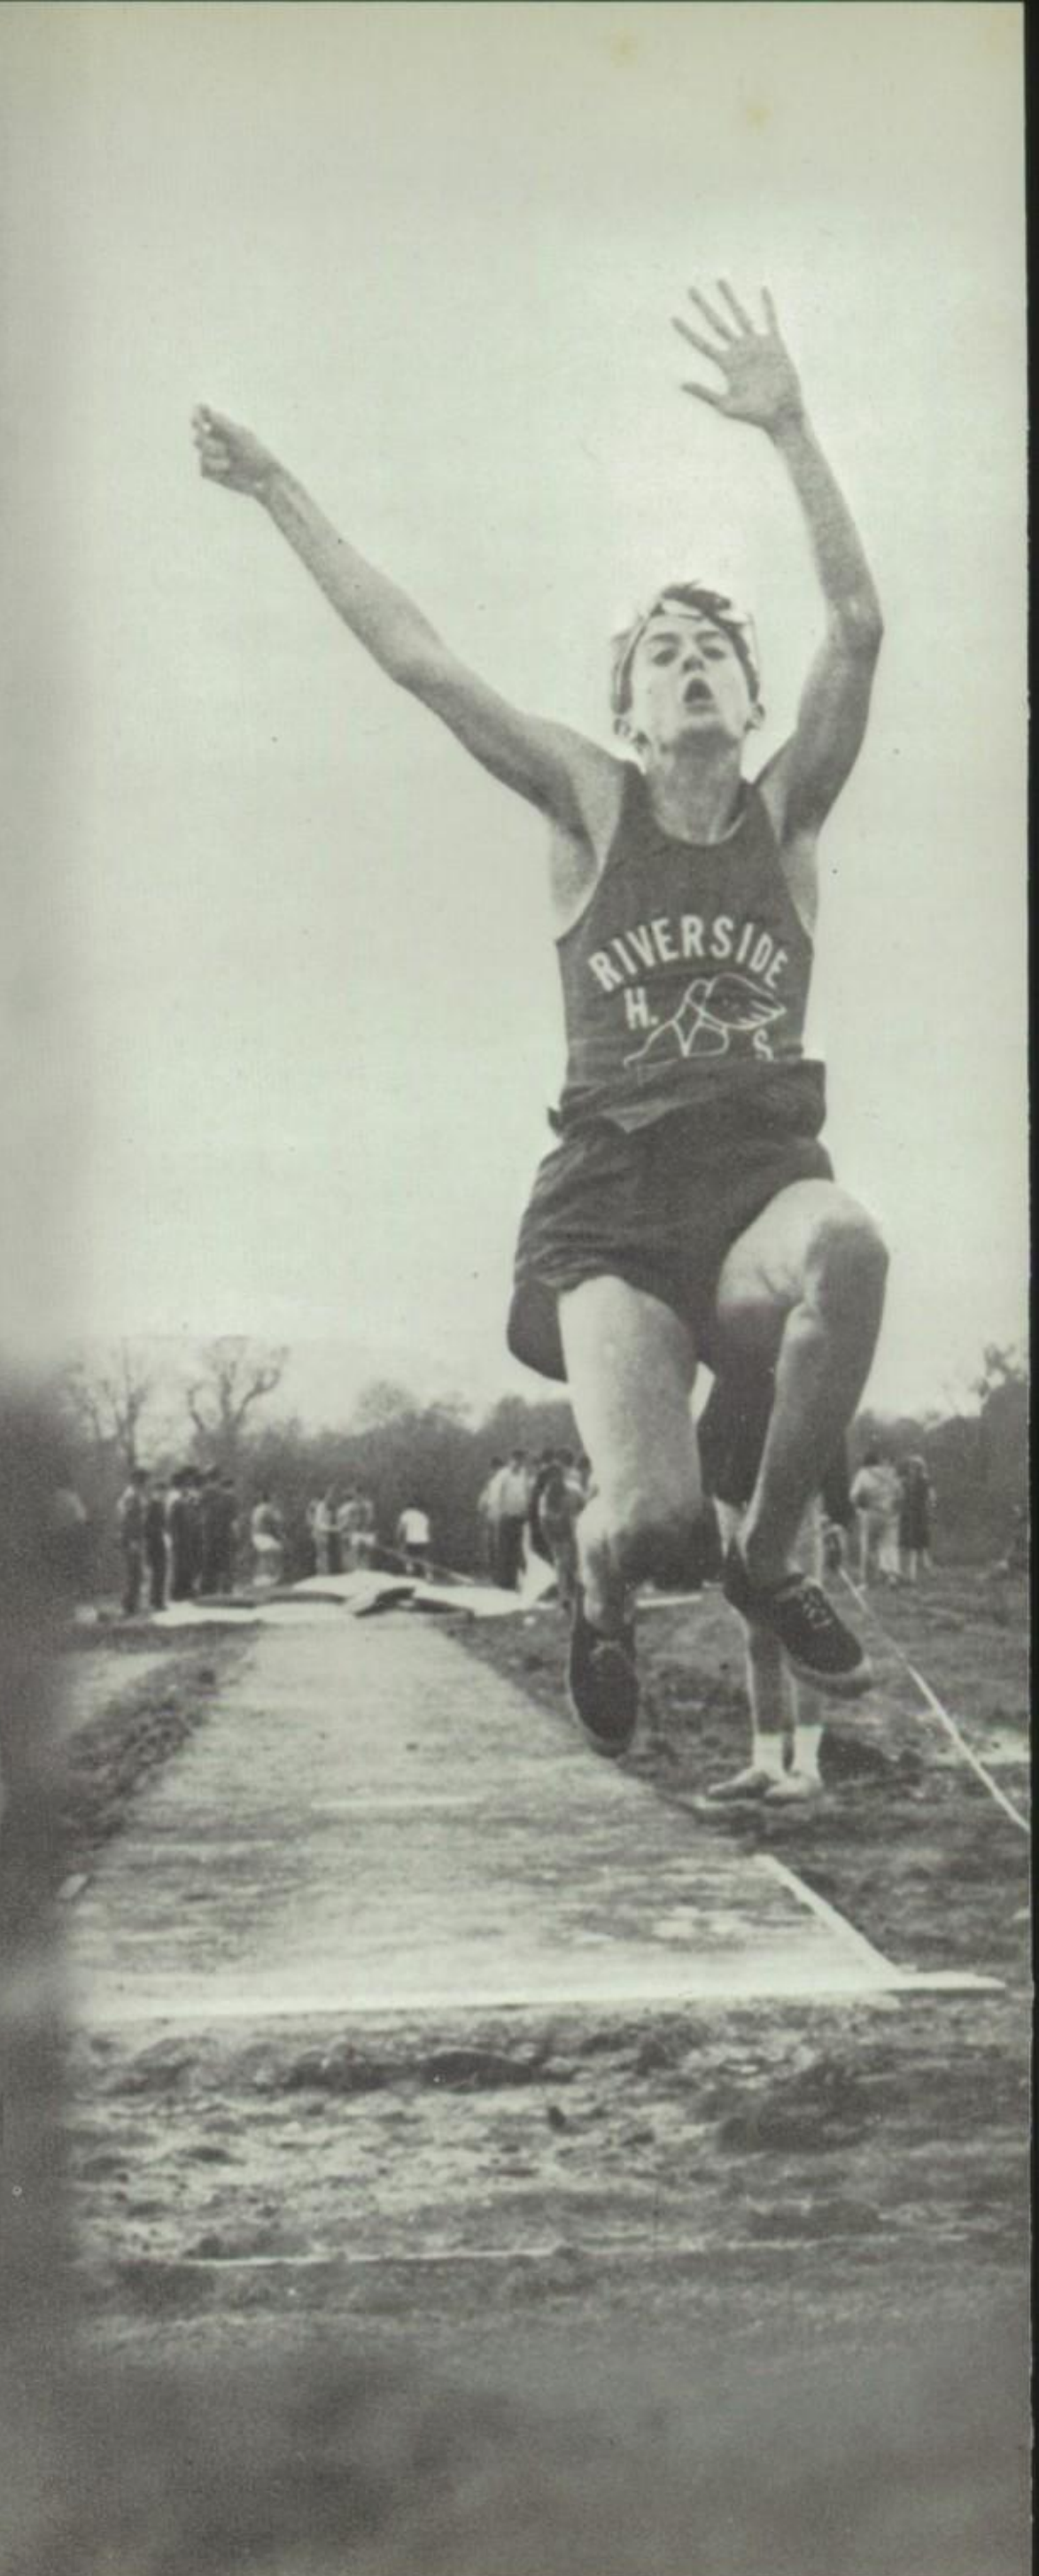

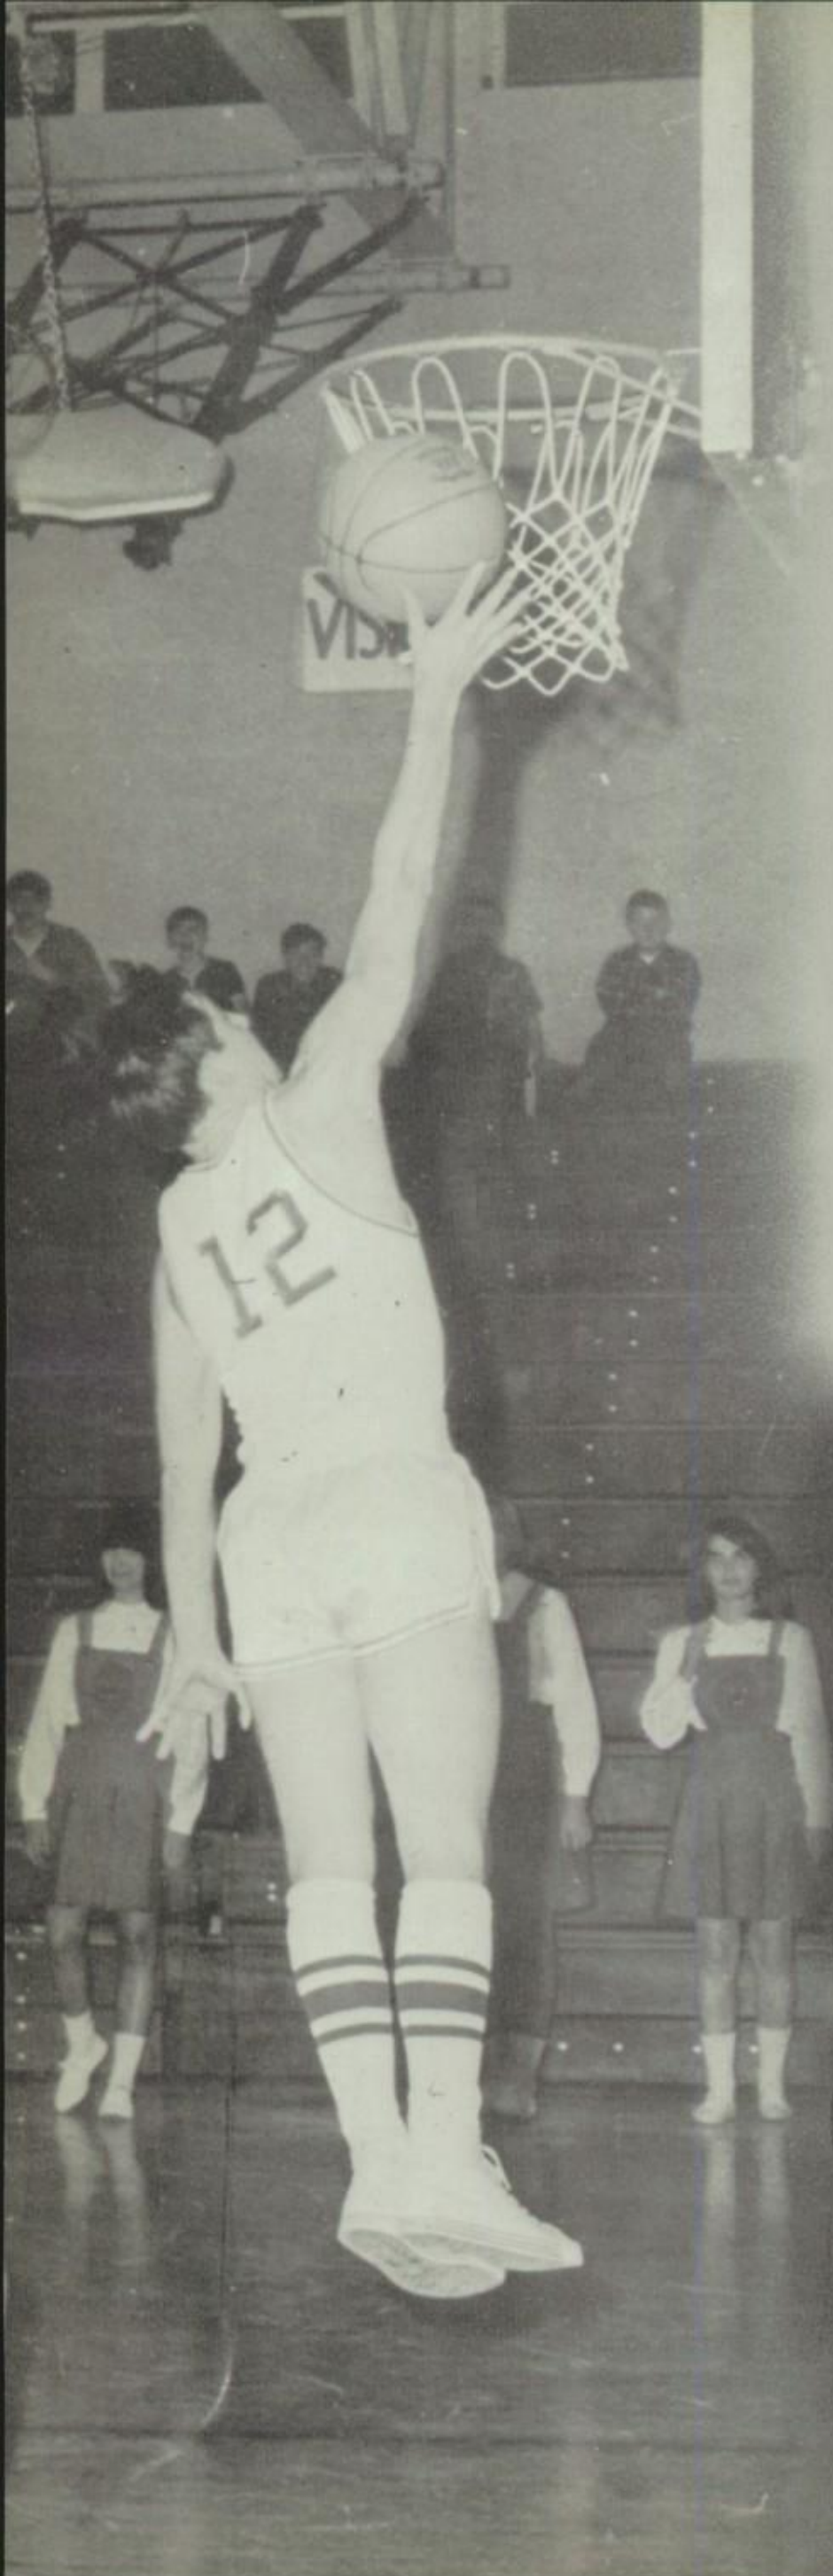

The students expressed their enthusiasm in music appreciation and at the same time, competed for the honors and position of belonging to the Mixed Chorus or Concert Choir.

Panthers pounced and pummeled prey

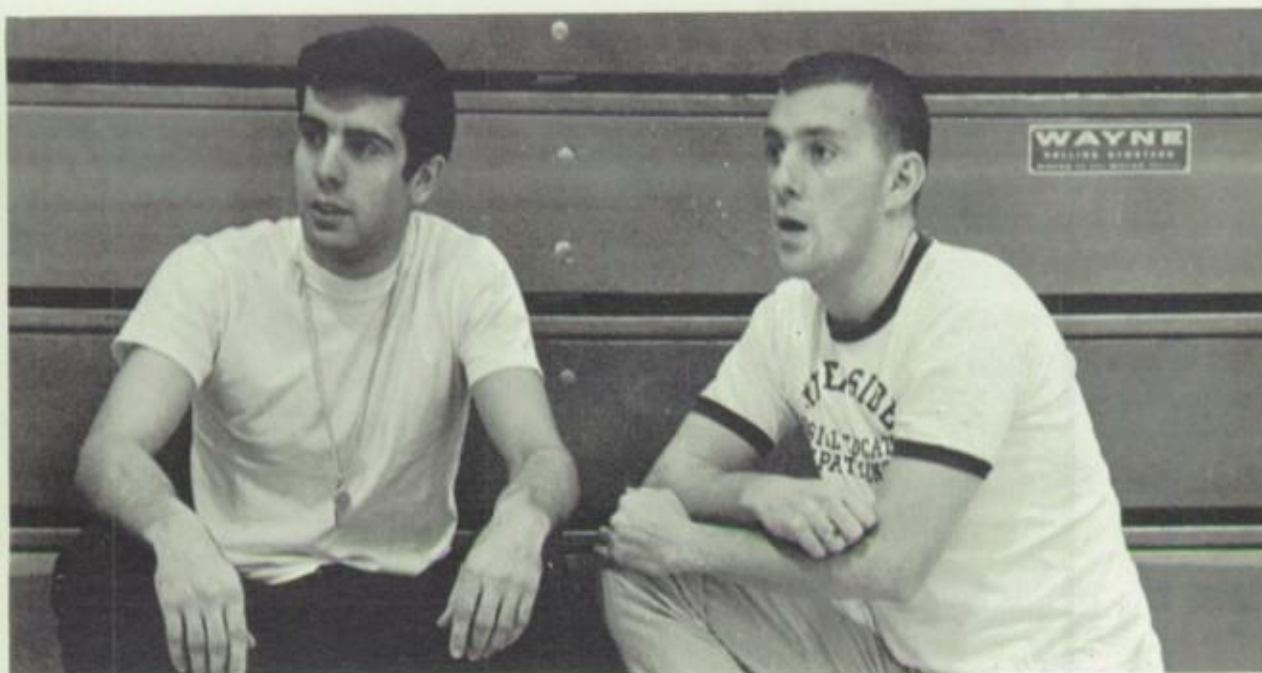

Critics predicted the Panthers to have a difficult and disappointing season. They claimed the team would be at a definite disadvantage because of a lack of players over six feet tall. In spite of these psychological pressures, the Panther cagers turned in a fine showing in their first game even though they lost. In the second game of the season, the Riverside team showed its capability in going the distance for the first Panther win. The cagers made up for their lack of board control by a consistantly high percentage of accuracy in field goals which usually came from the outside. Followers of this season's team believed that the Panther success was due to the amazing drive and spirit of the team from the first jumpball to the final buzzer. The four regular senior starters formed the hard core for the well-trained and well-practiced Panthers. Perhaps the highlight of the season occured before regular play started, when the senior girls started "We'd rather bruise than lose" campaign. All the Panther cagers learned that greatness can only be achieved by diligence and loyal support of their followers.

The Junior High Boys have truly lived up to the purposes and high standards of the Junior High Basketball program—participating mentally, socially, emotionally, physically and spiritually to the fullest extent. The whole program was geared to achieve a successful basketball season with the efforts of a number of Junior High boys. These boys were given the opportunity to acquire attitudes of fair play and basketball skills that will prove to be invaluable to them in the coming years.

Cheerleaders Spark Student Enthusiasm

The Varsity and Junior Varsity Cheerleaders worked diligently to instill school spirit and enthusiasm in the student body this year. In order to become a cheerleader, a girl must possess poise, leadership, and a well-rounded personality. The girls must audition before faculty members who choose among the prospective candidates. Riverside can be proud of the vim and vitality displayed by its cheerleaders.

The cheerleaders sponsor many activities during the year. One of these activities is the Christmas Dance, which had the theme, "Happiness is Christmas." In the fall, the cheerleaders and the Varsity "R" club sponsor the Hoedown which provides the students with a pleasant break from their studies.

Energetically, the junior high cheerleaders proudly cheered their team to victory this past year. Their pride and faith in the team was transmitted to the entire student body. Riverside cheerleaders were chosen this year by competitive tryouts held in the gym. Faculty members of the cheering committee judged contestants on the following items: appearance, poise, pep, skill, voice, personality, leadership, and attitude. They promoted good sportsmanship and enthusiasm among members of the junior high school.

Panther Baseball

The baseball season started early for Panther Players as tryouts began in February. Coaches Ed Ellenich and Dan Oliastro had the difficult task of narrowing down the fifty perspective members to a tough squad of twenty-five. After many hard practices, the starting nine made their debut on the diamond. The first half of the season was disappointing as the young team dropped twelve straight away games.

However, the coaches and the fighting Panthers did not give up; and during the home stretch, met and defeated such high contending teams as South Side, Western Beaver, and Center. The Panther moundsmen dominated the games with sparkling performances.

Boys' Swimming Team

The Boys' Swim Team, was a new inovation, started in the Fall of the 1967-1968 school year.

Swimming is an excellent sport which enables the atheletes to develop physically, mentally, and spiritually. Under the experienced supervision of Coach Griffith, the team met before and after school for rigorous practice sessions. Through these sessions, the boys developed self-control and a winning attitude. A sense of loyalty to the team and school was also realized through the meets.

The teamwork paid off well since outstanding sportsmanship and fair play was exhibited by all members in every meet.

Perhaps the final word can be determination. It takes drive to make every practice, it takes drive to push oneself just a little harder to make first place, and it takes drive to put the team first before any other activity.

These boys are a part of Riverside that make it "great."

Students swim to "Sounds of the Seasons"

Riverside can truly be proud of their first girl's varsity swim team. Even though they failed to win a section meet, they still placed well in championship competition. This was an outstanding achievement considering they are a fledgling team. Vying against well-established schools with experienced teams, accounted for many of the season's losses. The girls unselfishly devoted much of their time to evening practices five and six days a week and voluntary sessions held each morning. At the conclusion of the season, many girls received the official varsity letters, while several second year girls were recipients of jackets. Because of the girls' constant efforts and pride in their endeavor, we at Riverside can consider the Green Marlins a first-rate team.

Foremost among the many spring activities at Riverside High School, is the annual swim show. This year the event was co-ordinated with the theme "The Sounds of the Seasons . . ." in mind. Preparations for the swim show were initiated in January and continued into March.

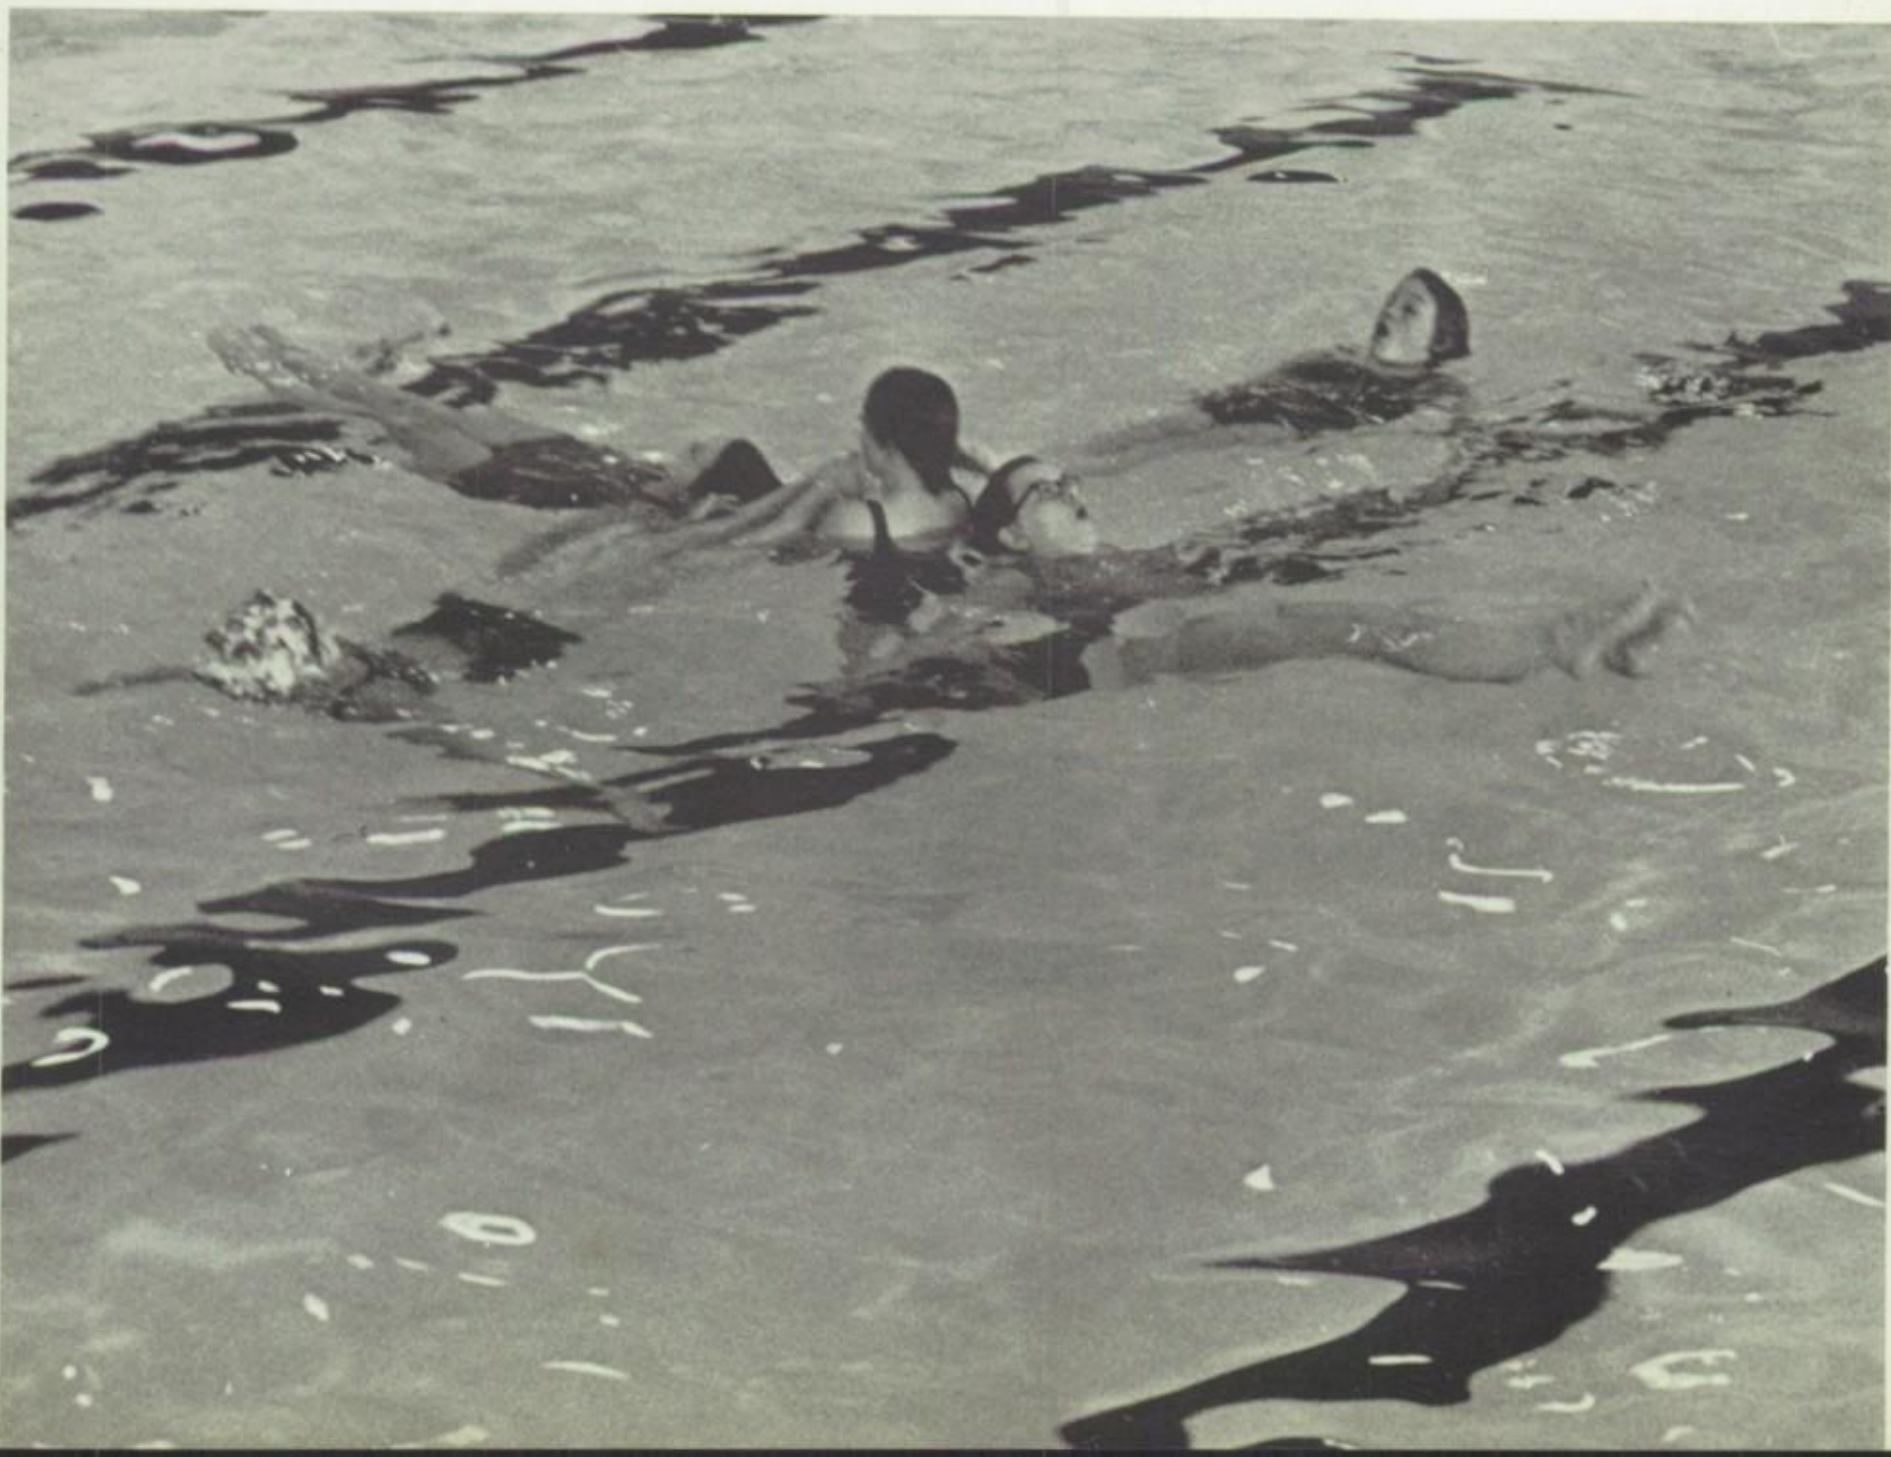

Approximately sixty to seventy students pooled their efforts to present an excellent program of synchronized swimming, individual competition, and relay contests. Routines varied from patriotic to comic interpretations.

Three months of diligent practice — six days a week, one and two hours a day, produced a fine evening of entertainment for all that attended. All those who participated had a great feeling of satisfaction upon completion of the program.

Among the many girls at Riverside, only twenty-five girls formed to make the first girls' track team. Asking for the guidance and experience of Miss King, the girls went on to succeed in their first meets. Practicing diligently every day after school proved very rewarding since the girls placed first in the Beaver County Girls' Track Championship Meet over twelve other schools. Their victory, a great reward for all their time and effort, made this an outstanding year. The girls hope that the coming season will be just as successful as the last year has been.

Effort, drive, desire — these three words can sum up the 1966-1967 track team's efforts. After a practice one could see the team trudging over the muddy, snow packed earth. Maybe a passer-by might have seen one or two of the members still practicing on the track late at night, giving that little extra effort to make a winning team. The work paid off as the team closed the season undefeated. The greatest team achievement was that of winning the WPIAL Class B Championship. These accomplishments truly exemplify the hard work and team effort that the boys employed to finish in the true Riverside spirit — winning.

Riverside students bowled over competition

The ten teams of Riverside's Bowling League clash in tough competition every Saturday enabling the members to improve their average. A little bit of luck and much skill are the terms used to describe the feats displayed at Park Lanes on Saturday morning. Along with the Saturday competitions, the League also holds a Single and a Doubles Tournament each year. The greatest farce of the year is when the top bowlers of the League match not brains but bowling scores, with volunteer faculty members.

This year, for the first time in the history of the League, the bowlers were able to purchase identical shirts inscribed with the school's name. The top bowlers and teams were rewarded with trophies at the climax of the season.

"Larry Wolfe waits tensely for a strike."

"Who's the nut in the alley?"

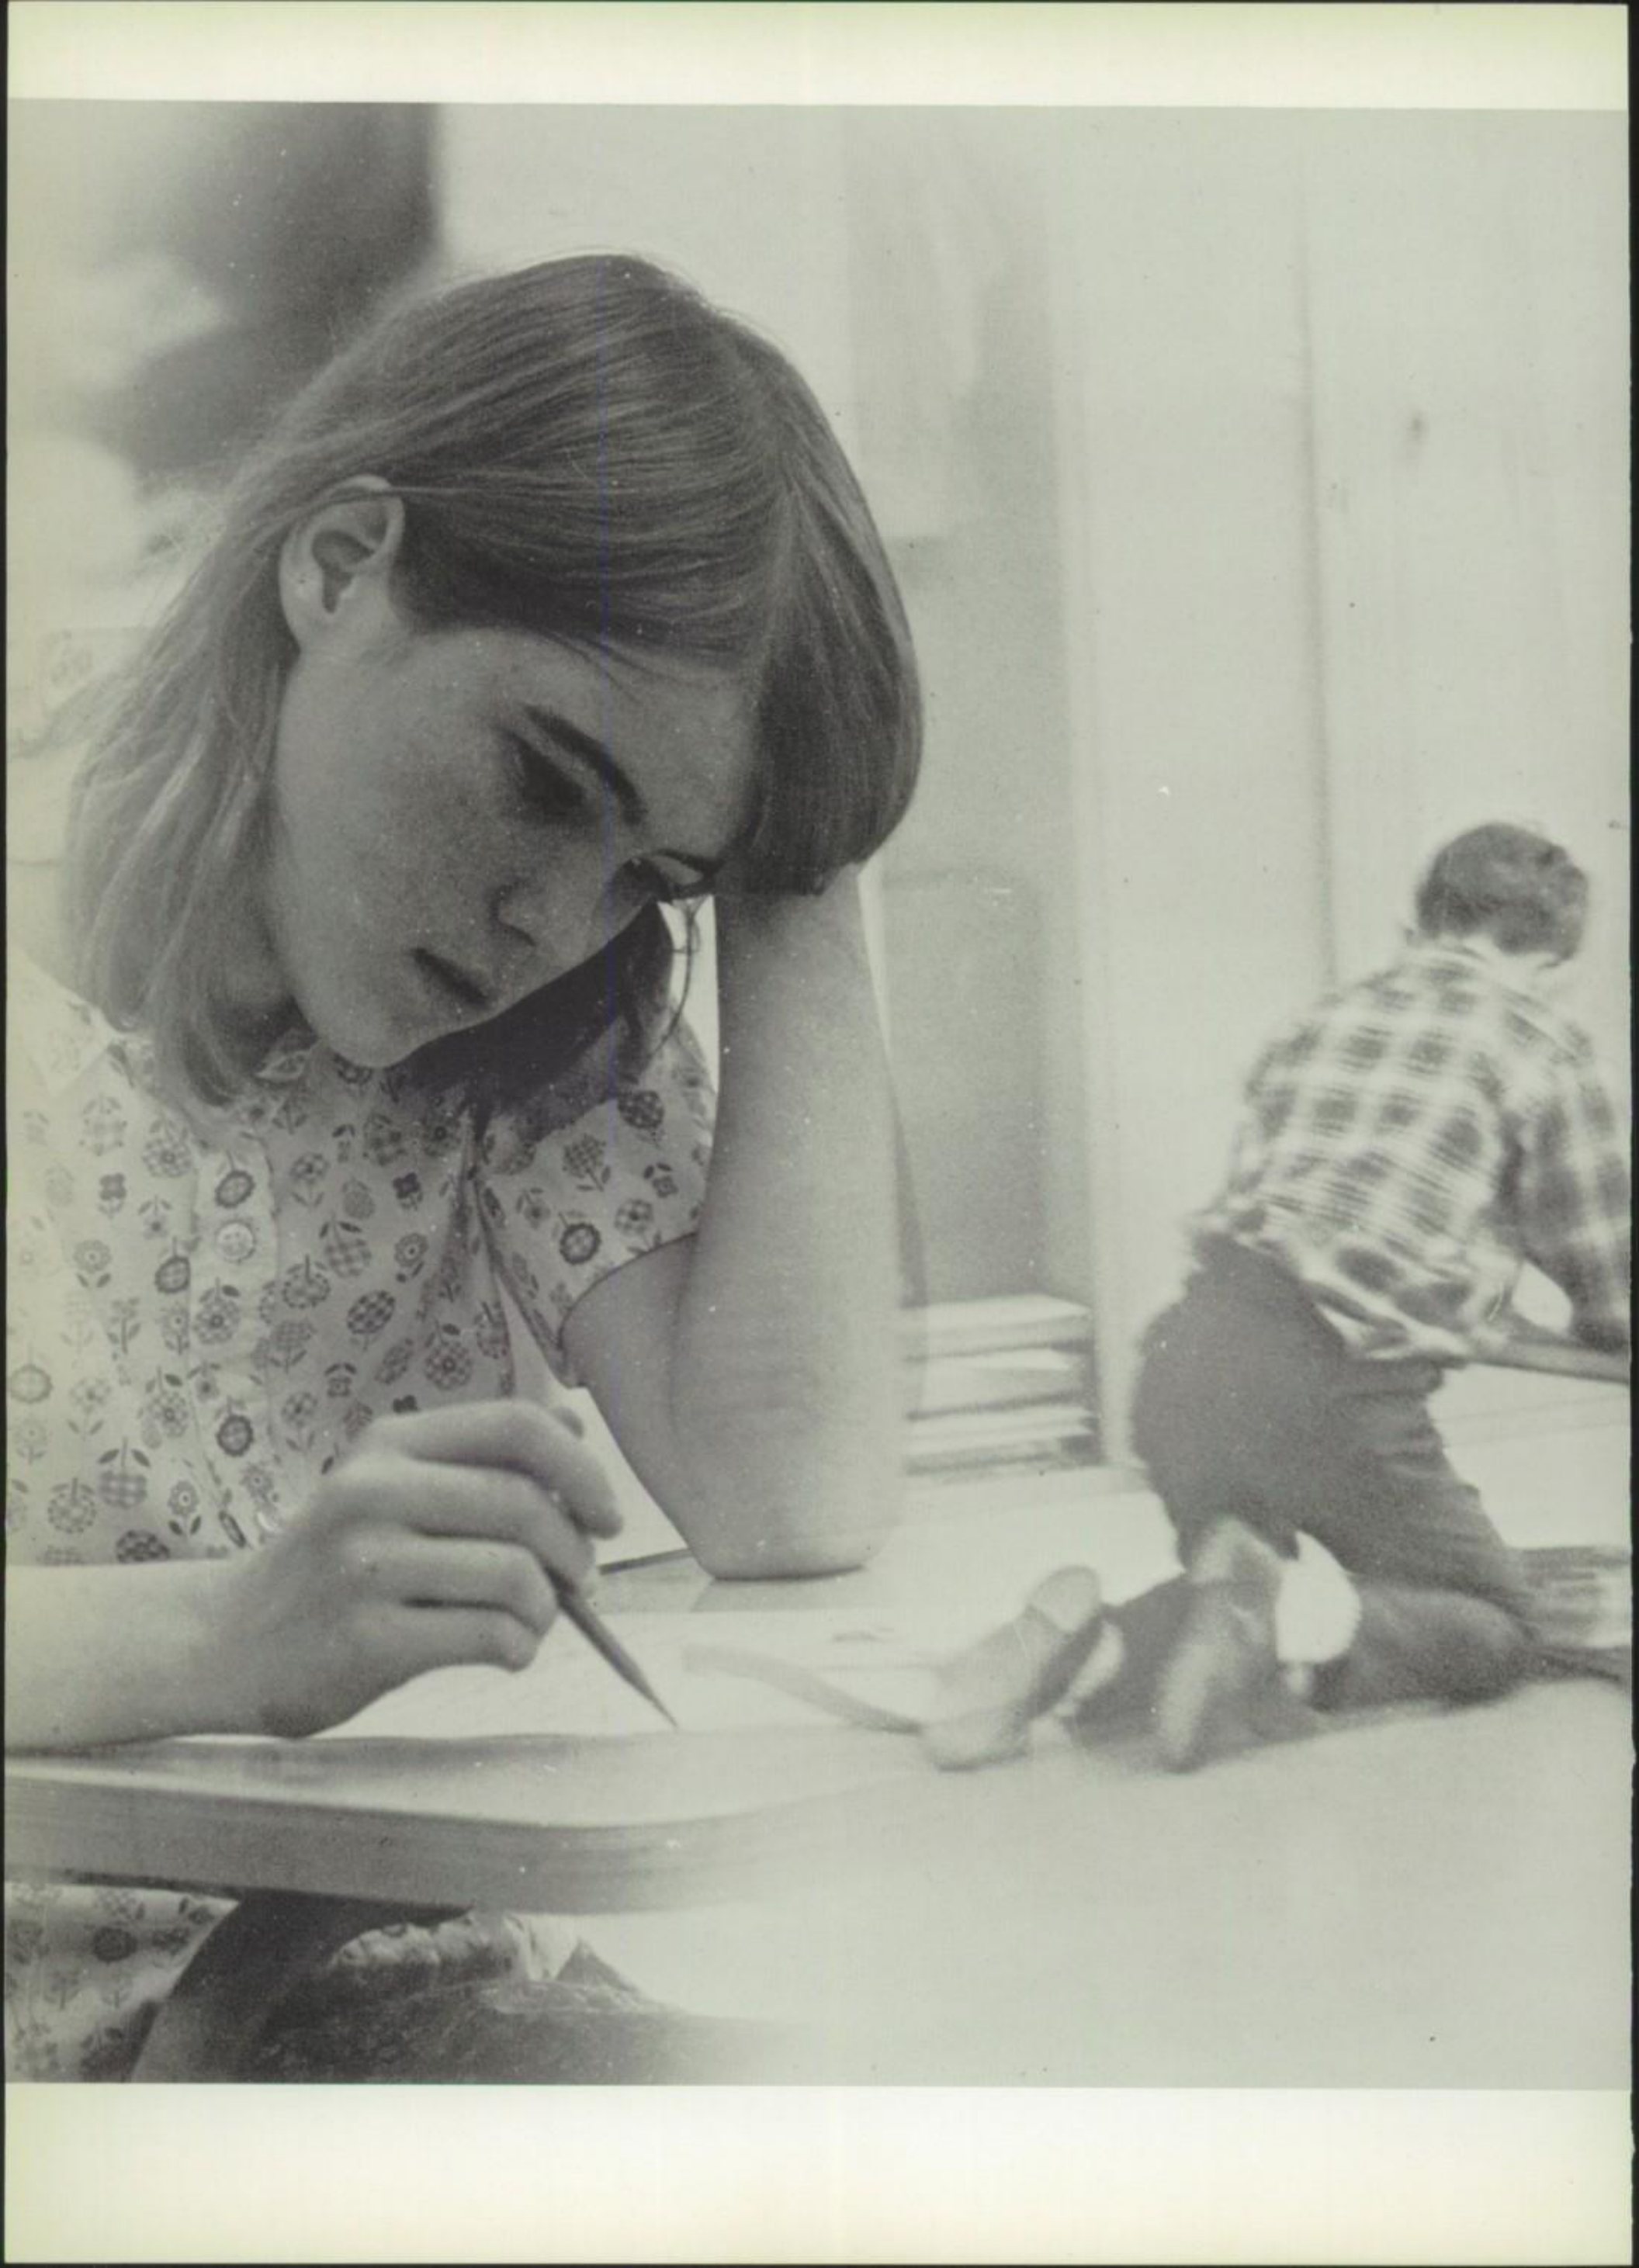

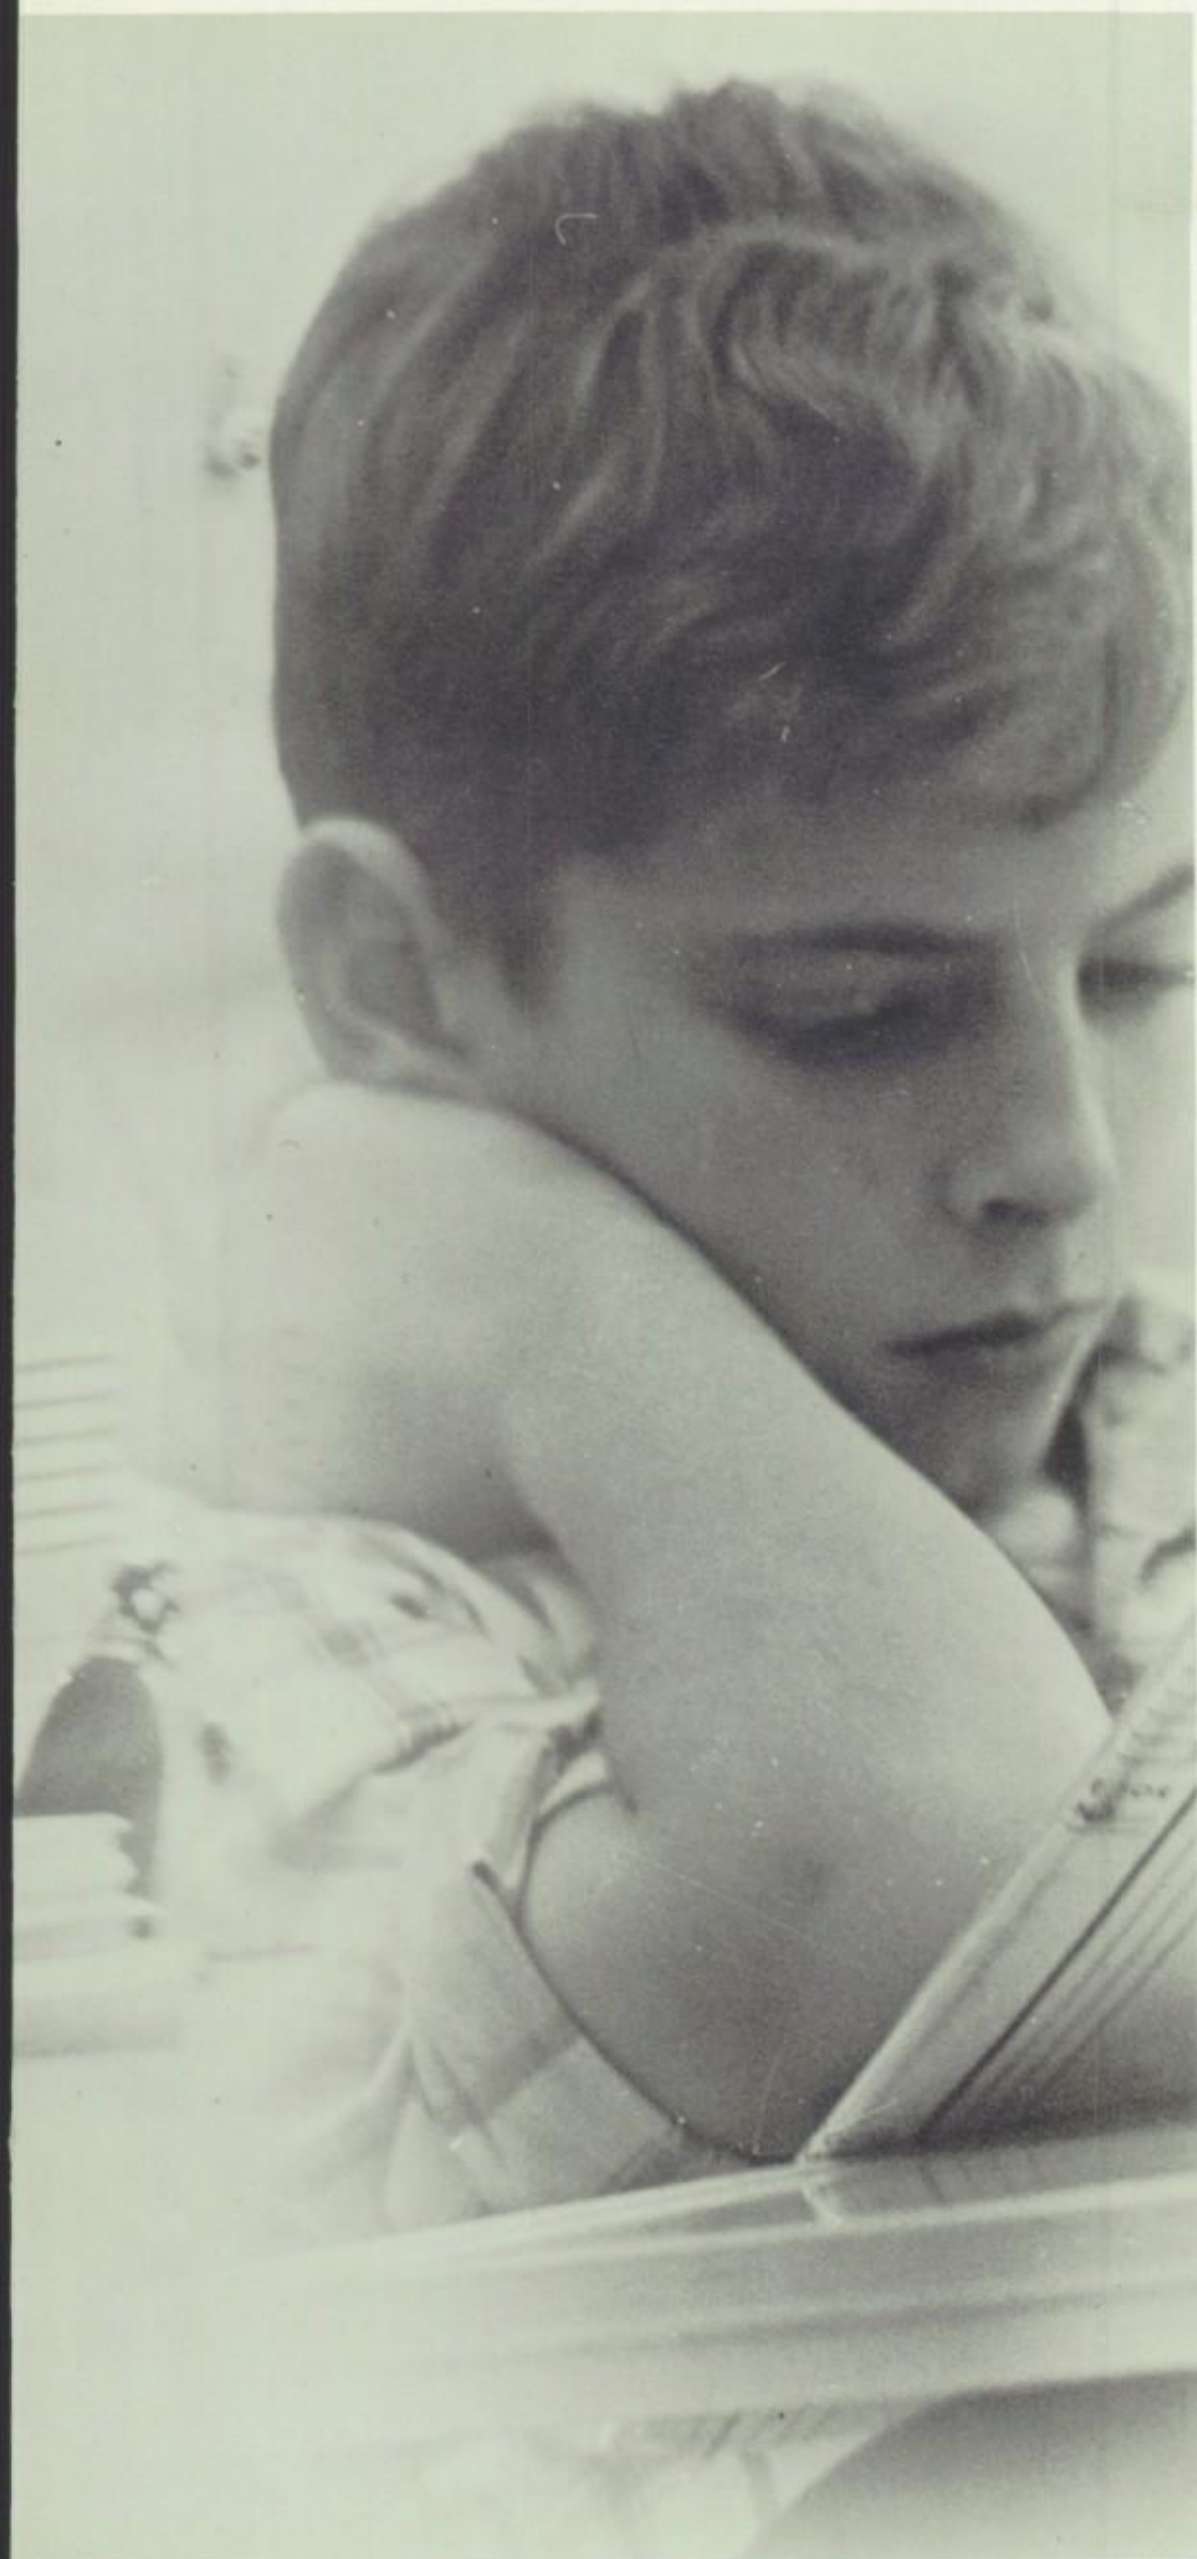

Coaches formed the backbone of Riverside athletics

The coaching staff, consisting of some of the most athletic members of our faculty, deserved a lot of credit for Riverside's outstanding athletic records this year. Without their desire to produce winning teams, we could not have succeeded. Their drive and determination even exceeded that of the players and their zealous efforts kept our teams going under great strain. They sacrificed valuable hours of their limited time and devoted themselves to the task of making teams; consisting of good runners, shooters, hitters, and swimmers, from individual, unexperienced athletes. In the end they were justly rewarded for their work, because they helped produce the "greatest" teams our school has ever had.

| SENIORS |

As seniors prepare to graduate, they contemplate what tomorrow will bring—college, marriage, a job.

Thresholds of the future challenge seniors

A footstep echoing in the hall, a cheerful greeting, a whispered trust — this was the stuff of typical days. Yet, the days were not ordinary for they held a quality, a union of minds, a pioneer spirit characteristic of the senior class. Challenges and accomplishments remained, a silent reminder of the Viking tradition.

"Great" honors were bestowed on two Pathfinder photographers this year. David Mulhollen, photography editor, and Bruce Senior, staff photographer, entered six pictures in a regional contest sponsored by Scholastic Magazine. In competition with 7,000 other entries, both boys received gold key awards and their pictures went on for national judging. The Pathfinder staff congratulates these two students for their outstanding work throughout the year as staff photographers and on their competitive accomplishments.

EXIT

We have searched for greatness and found its form in these places, these ideals, and these people around us. Yet, complete greatness is an intangible quality, able to be comprehended only by the human heart. The sum of greatness escaped the eye of camera and the ink of pen. Perhaps greatness can be best described as the composite of ambition, understanding, concern and confidence. By absorbing these qualities, we have in some way achieved an understanding of "What's so great about it."
